

Sustainable Programs for College Students

College is a great opportunity to become further involved in the environmental world, and many schools have numerous sustainable programs for students. Here are some ideas:

1. Green Consulting Clubs. This is a specific type of consulting club where students work with companies to make them more sustainable. Some examples of these consulting clubs include:
 - a. BEACN
 - b. Clean Consulting
 - c. Harvard CBE
2. Environmental Clubs. Various environmental clubs at different universities work to make their specific university or area more sustainable. Some examples of these clubs include:
 - a. Getting Involved in College Environmental Clubs
 - b. Pitzer College Student Groups
3. Internship Opportunities: Many colleges will have resources available to connect students with various green internships. Examples of this include:
 - a. UMiami Office of Sustainability Internship
 - b. UCSB Sustainability Internship Program
 - c. University of Michigan School for Environment and Sustainability Internships
4. Research Opportunities: Oftentimes, college students can apply to do research under professors at their university even as undergraduates! Examples of these types of research opportunities include:
 - a. UCLA Sustainability Research
 - b. UCSB Undergraduate Research: Environmental Studies Program